

SOUTH TEXAS CHILDREN'S HOME MINISTRIES

Texas

Raising a family can be hard, but raising one alone is even harder. After Echo Williams, a single mother of five, lost her home and was forced to move her family into a motel, she knew she needed help, so she went to South Texas Children's Home (STCH) Ministries.

When Echo first arrived at STCH Ministries, she moved into "Homes for Families" in Goliad with her two youngest children, while her three oldest children lived at "Homes for Children" in Pettus.

At STCH Ministries, Echo's children were taught respect, boundaries and the Gospel. Echo was taught parenting skills and how to build healthy relationships while also being given the chance to earn her GED so that she could better provide for her family in the future. She was also taught how to study the Bible and follow Jesus daily, learning that her self-worth was found in Christ. Echo said she has seen a lot of growth in her children and herself.

Texas Baptists partners with STCH Ministries through Cooperative Program giving to help families and children in South Texas. Let us pray for Echo, her family and the continued work of STCH Ministries.
