

DISCIPLES FOR LIFE CHURCH

Texas

Disciples for Life Church is not your typical congregation. For one thing, it is a house church that rotates meeting in one of three Houston homes on Sundays. In addition, the church is so focused on outreach, that every member of the group is leading some type of outreach effort.

Houston church plant coordinator Guy Caskey said his church, which numbers up to 20 people, seeks to reach out to unreached people groups.

Members of Disciples for Life Church share the Gospel with people leaving jail and prison. Several times each month, they pour into a nearby apartment complex to do ministry with the Hispanic residents and children who live there. They also have church members who have done work in India, and they regularly send resources to the Horn of Africa.

As a part of the Texas Baptists Multi-house and House Congregations ministry, Disciples for Life Church uses gifts from the Cooperative Program to purchase resources that help people grow in discipleship and serve as witnessing tools. One of the resources is a bracelet used to share the Gospel and train others in evangelism.

Let's pray for the members of Disciples of Life Church, that God would bless their outreach efforts and use them to lead many to faith in Christ.
